5. Dissertation key findings:

5.1. In theory:

- The thesis has contributed to systematizing and clarifying some issues about concepts, characteristics, roles, capital classification and capital mobilization for construction of road transport infrastructure.

- The thesis develops the content of capital sources and methods to mobilize the respective capital sources, thereby emphasizing the importance of the coordination of capital sources, in order to clarify the role of the road transport infrastructure for the goal of fast and sustainable socio-economic development and national security.

- The thesis has built a hypothesis about the model of factors affecting the ability to mobilize investment capital for the construction of a coastal road in the North of Vietnam.

5.2. In practice:

- The thesis has given an overview of the coastal road, clearly stating the legal basis for mobilizing investment capital for construction of the coastal road.

- The thesis studies the current situation of managing the process of mobilizing investment capital for the construction of the Northern coastal road, from research and survey results, including results of analysis of data on coastal roads which passes through 5 northern provinces from 2014 to 2021. At the same time, the thesis identifies factors affecting the mobilization of investment capital for construction of coastal roads, applying comparative method, the results of multivariate regression analysis show that 4 factors affect the ability to raise capital.

- From that, the thesis draws on the achieved results, limitations and causes in mobilizing investment capital for construction of Northern coastal road in recent years. This is the practical basis for solutions to increase capital mobilization.

- On the basis of analyzing the current situation and theory, the thesis proposes a system of feasible solutions to improve the efficiency of raising capital for investment in the construction of the northern coastal road in Vietnam.
